Looking to the future, remembering the past

Outline Plan of RAF Elsham Wolds (World War II)

This plan shows the position of the runways, perimeter tracks, dispersals relative to existing features, which are highlighted. Very little of the former airfield now remains. One of the large hangers stands on the Industrial Estate and until recently there was evidence of a few smaller buildings in various states of repair, beyond. There are signs of the runway and perimeter track in places. The main A15 road, built in the 1970s, is shown in grey running southwards across the airfield site, between the Humber Bridge to the North and Junction 5 of the M180.
